Developer's Update

- Following the great feedback on Twitter, we launched a few months ago the small free demo of "Sabbat of the Witch". We, and the team, gathered a lot of information about the experience in the meanwhile.
- It's been a challenging but rewarding experience. From the start we knew we wanted to develop a game similar to the cult "Tales from Space" series by the legendary developer Gremlin (followed by "Airheart" and "Snowboarding"). This first version is more ambitious than both of these, but we've been afraid of getting into trouble.
- We had to change things a lot because of the fairytale atmosphere, but at the same time we wanted to stay close to the classic idea of "Sabbat of the Witch" and its playful spirit.
- We want to improve the game a lot and focus on completing our game before releasing the final version. To do so we need your help. Feedback is requested. Please try the game out, find bugs, suggest ideas and try to help us make the best game possible!
- We are not aiming to become a mature well established studio, but rather creating a successful indie studio driven by our passion and the creative potential of the team members.
