and DWIN). However, such a design may cause a problem that the drive track of the vehicle on the left side is narrowed by the amount of the width of the driver seat, which may hinder the drive of the vehicle. The present invention is made in view of the above circumstances, and an objective of the present invention is to provide a drive system for a vehicle including a power unit of the vehicle to which a common drive transmission is connected to an engine and an electric motor, a drive power transmission for transmitting an output of the common drive transmission, and a drive transmission for transmitting an output power of the power unit to a drive track on the left side of a road and/or the right side of the road. The common drive transmission comprises first and second drive shafts of different diameters, which are coaxially arranged on the same axis, and the common drive transmission and the power transmission are formed by a single axis unit. Therefore, both the common drive transmission and the power transmission are common. The drive transmission on the left side of the road and/or the right side of the road includes an electromagnetic drive transmission, to which a drive power transmission is connected from the drive power transmission, which is formed by a single axis unit, and a reduction gear unit. The electromagnetic drive transmission includes a drive shaft and a drive pulley, which are coaxially arranged on the same axis, and a gear driven by a drive force of the power unit and a drive power transmission torque, which is outputted from the electromagnetic drive transmission, is transmitted to the drive pulley. Therefore, the common drive transmission is connected to the power unit, and the drive power transmission torque is transmitted by the electromagnetic drive transmission and the reduction gear unit to the left-side drive track and the right-side drive track. Therefore, the present invention has the advantage of designing the left-side drive and the right-side drive transmission of the vehicle in a highly efficient manner, and can prevent the power transmission from being concentrated on each of the left-side drive transmission and the right-side drive transmission, which can be compactly arranged. The reduction gear unit is a differential gear unit with which an output of the electromagnetic drive transmission and an output of the drive power transmission are distributed and outputted in different output directions. Therefore, the drive system for a vehicle, which can sufficiently disperse and distribute the output of the electromagnetic drive transmission and the drive power transmission, is realized. When the drive transmission on the left side of the road and/or

Loch Hall Loch Hall is a former seat and estate of the Dukes of Buccleuch, in Renfrewshire, Scotland. A small village grew up around the castle, but was significantly reduced in size by the building of the Caledonian Railway from Glasgow to Edinburgh in the mid-19th century. Much of Loch Lochaber lies within the grounds of the castle. History Loch Hall was built for Sir James Stevenson, 1st Lord Polwarth between 1576 and 1622. It is a fine example of Dutch Renaissance architecture with a number of interesting features: Under the front gable can be seen the date of 1622 (the year of his death) in wooden letters. Under the wingless pediment are coats of arms of Robert Stevenson, and his son, John, and their successors. In the tympanum are relief panels of the Buchanan Family. Under the vestibule is a statue of Sir James, sculpted by Anthony van Dyck. In the 19th century Lord Polwarth's place in the peerage became extinct, and the property fell to his granddaughter, Lady Louisa Stevenson. A popular hypothesis is that the present-day Lasswade Castle is the castle of Duleck of the land of Aros. The mansion burned down in 1916 and was rebuilt. After the death of Lady Louisa Stevenson in 1926, the mansion was purchased by the family of the Earl of Crawford. It was then sold to Sir Bryan Cadogan in 1928. In 1939 it was sold to Lord Aberconway and from then to the Colquhoun family, members of which reside at Lasswade House. Lasswade was the home of actress Diana Rigg from 1946 to 1948. Later Lord Aberconway sold the manor to its current owners. It is now occupied by a commercial enterprise. The machines to be controlled range from power tools, such as drills and drivers, to machines,
